Richard Wolf

THE BIG, BAD WOLF.

Veteran producer, songwriter and remixer Richard Wolf has been involved with many talents, including Prince, Seal, Bell Biv DeVoe and Coolio. Recently, he spends much of his time working with Fox Sports Network and his new company, eSoundtrax. His association with Fox Sports Network requires him to come up with two-minute pieces to fit the sport du jour. Whether he is producing the next hot single, working with a new artist or writing his own compositions, Wolf uses Korg and has been since the days of the M1.

Wolf explains, "I've been using the M1 since the early 90's when we did the first Bell, Biv, DeVoe record and the remix of Seal's first single. If I like a keyboard I'll keep using it forever because each one has its own characteristics...its own personality. The M1 is just as viable today as it was twelve years ago and I expect that my Trinity and Triton will be the same."

While he continues to produce records, his current focus is his new company, eSoundtrax. At eSoundtrax.com, unsigned artists of all genres can submit their best songs in hopes of being selected for T.V. shows, movies, commercials and more. The company's specialty is placing music in programs and just recently ABC called for fifteen "rave" songs. Wolf did a few himself and the others were selected from the eSoundtrax music library. Artists who normally wouldn't have these connections get to take advantage of eSoundtrax' large network of major studios and television production companies. Looking for your big break?
